A MY4MLIFE FIELD GUIDE

Don't lose your identity and your dignity while you still have a choice.

The fear that haunts the modern conversation about aging isn't death. It's irrelevance — watching cognitive ability slip away and, with it, the sense of self that made you you.

You have a window. It is closing while you read this. This book is the map.

Begin with the End in Mind is the field guide that emerged from a thirty-year arc — refined through thousands of clinical encounters, validated by regenerative medicine's most demanding practitioners, and pressure-tested by men and women who have lived the protocol and gotten their lives back. It is organized around a framework Dr. TJ Mundheim calls the 4 Ms — Mind, Muscle, Mitigate, Motivate — built on a single, ruthless premise: your mind is the destination, and everything else is the substrate that protects it. Inside: a daily protocol, a 20-question self-assessment, the eliminate-the-insulting-behavior checklist, and the My4MLife cohort system that turns reading into running.
